Three Overcome By Coal Gas Fumes

Baby Awakens Her Parents at Wittenberg; Brooder House Burns

Woodstock, Jan. 6.—The hamlet of Wittenberg, township of Woodstock, was visited by further misfortune this week, when three members of a family were overcome by coal gas fumes and a fire destroyed a brooder on an area farm early this morning.

The mishaps were only four days after the fire early last Sunday morning which destroyed the home of August May and left a family of 10 homeless.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Bonesteel and their three-year-old daughter were overcome by coal gas fumes sometime between last night and early this morning.

The family was saved from more serious effects of the fumes when the daughter woke up at about 6:30 a. m. and aroused her parents.

The father then noticed the gas fumes and telephoned Dr. Hans Cohn of Woodstock. Dr. Cohn immediately notified Marvin Doremus to rush to the Bonesteel home with the fire department in tow and the doctor went to the house immediately.

Mrs. Bonesteel and her daughter were lying on a bed, and the father was lying on the kitchen floor when Dr. Cohn arrived. All were conscious but badly affected by the fumes.

They were removed to the home of Mr. Bonesteel's father and the mother was applied when Doremus arrived. The family remained at the home of the older Bonesteel following treatment.

The fumes had apparently come from a pipeless furnace.

Brooder House Burns

Earlier this morning a brooder and 250 chicks on the farm of Albert Rother of Wittenberg were destroyed in a fire.

Firemen of the Woodstock department were summoned at 4 a. m., but before their arrival Mr. and Mrs. Rother and others worked with two garden hoses to prevent spread of the fire to a large barn and a garage near the chicken coop.

The fire was discovered by a hired man and was believed to have originated in a small coal stove in one corner of the brooder. An electric incubator was also destroyed.

Firemen said they were delayed in reaching the blaze because of bad roads and an early-morning fog. Two trucks were sent on the call, and the blaze was checked before it spread to other structures.

Laundryman Is Killed

New York, Jan. 6 (AP)—A Chinese laundryman was found beaten to death today in his room in the rear of his Bronx shop. An assistant medical examiner said bloodstains on the walls, tables and floor indicated the laundryman, Lee Yung, 50, put up a fierce struggle. Authorities believed death was due to a fractured skull. Yung lived alone in the rear of the shop, 261 West 231st street, for the past 20 years. A customer found the body and called police.

Governor's Program Is To Get Okay

Republican Leaders Say Vast Program Is to Pass Without Many Changes

Speech Is Praised
Message Brings Forth Commendation as One of High Purpose

Albany, N. Y., Jan. 6 (AP)—Republican legislative leaders predicted today that Governor Dewey's vast spending program would be passed without substantial change.

Majority party members introduced 11 administration bills to implement a considerable part of the program Dewey proposed in his message to the new Legislature yesterday.

Their early and apparently solid support of Dewey's leadership unfolded in the face of heavy Democratic attacks. It foreshadowed intensified political sharpshooting by both sides in the 1950 gubernatorial election.

Democratic legislative leaders served notice they would demand more financial aid for municipalities and would make it a "major issue." Dewey did not discuss this in his message.

Democrats said too, they would demand $60,000,000 additional state aid for education above the $40,000,000 increase over last year which Dewey said would be mandated by law.

And, in a joint statement by minority Senate and Assembly leaders Elmer F. Quinn and Irwin Steingut, they said they would ask again and again "what happened" to a $750,000,000 surplus.

Dewey in his message proposed a pay-as-you-go program requiring heavy added taxes to finance a budget of $800,000,000.

His program called for broadening of social services on a scale never attempted in his six years in office.

Republican leaders hailed it as "humanitarian, forward-looking, masterful."

Considerable opposition to the projected spending program is anticipated from business and taxpayer groups.

"This is expected to crystallize when Dewey's fiscal proposals are set forth specifically in his budget message late this month."

On the other side, several groups already were lined up to demand more spending than Dewey proposed in his message yesterday.

The Board of Regents, for one, wants $41,000,000 in state aid for education and school construction above the $40,000,000 increase mandated because of a rise in pupil population.

State civil service workers are asking a 12 per cent wage increase.

Still to be heard from are major teacher organizations which presumably will seek higher pay for their members.

The program bills introduced followed closely Dewey's recommendations. They would:

Authorize an additional $300,000,000 bond issue for public housing and slum clearance.

Boost from $13,000,000 to $25,000,000 the amount for the state's police power of the state, a system providing for the payment of reasonable cash benefits to eligible individuals suffering accident or illness which is not compensable under the Workmen's Compensation Law.

No new administrative machinery will be created under the Disability Compensation Law. The same will be administered by the Industrial Commissioner through the Labor Department's Division of Placement and Unemployment Insurance.

In addition to administering the law, the commissioner is required to take such steps as are within his means for the reduction and prevention of disability.

All employers subject to the provisions of the Unemployment Insurance Law will be subject to the provisions of the Disability Compensation Law and shall be liable for the payment into the disability benefit fund of premiums equal to 2 per cent of their payroll. The employer may currently deduct from the remuneration of each of his employees an amount equal to one-half of one per cent of such remuneration but such deduction shall in no event exceed 2 cents weekly in the case of employees paid on a weekly basis.

Employees paid on a semi-monthly basis, or $1.25 monthly if the employees' remuneration is paid on a monthly basis.

Truman Programs to Take $500,000,000 Officials Say

Gets Laughs Had Other Ideas

Albany, N. Y., Jan. 6 (AP)—"There was a time last year that I didn't expect to be with you here today."

That's what Governor Dewey told New York's legislators yesterday when they opened their 1949 session.

He made the reference to his November defeat for the presidency in an impromptu preface to his annual message. He drew a laugh from the lawmakers when he added:

"I hope I didn't disappoint too many of you."

Western Citrus Has 20-Million Loss; Floods Reported

Rocky Mountain, Plains States Struggle to Recover From Blizzard

(By The Associated Press)
Distress signals flew over wide areas today on the nation's weather map.

The worst victims of weather's elements were the Rocky mountain and western plains states; four southern states and the rich citrus area of California and Arizona.

The snow-bound Rocky mountain and plains states struggled against seemingly insurmountable odds in dramatic attempts to recover from the winter season's worst blizzard.

Flood waters spilled from rain-swollen rivers in four southern states—Mississippi, Alabama, Tennessee and Georgia—forcing thousands from their homes and isolating several communities.

More sub-freezing weather hit areas in the California-Arizona citrus belt and losses in the industry were estimated at $20,000,000.

There also was the threat of new floods in the northeastern section of the country. Heavy rains fell from the Carolinas northward along the Atlantic coast to New England.

The Dakotas had finally blown out of the blizzard and western Nebraska. No fresh snow fell, winds diminished and temperatures were in the 20's. The coldest areas in the country today were in Utah and Nevada—10 below at some points. This cold spread into Arizona and California and sent the mercury to below freezing in some areas for the third straight day.

Sub-freezing marks were reported in Phoenix, Ariz., Fresno, Calif., and the mercury headed for the 32 mark in Los Angeles after yesterday's minimum of 31.

Red Cross officials said more than 2,200 persons fled from their homes in the Columbus, Miss., blizzard.

Inslerman Appears Again as Witness At Jury's Session

G.E. Engineer Is Present for 4th Day; Two New Persons Are Summoned

New York, Jan. 6 (AP)—Felix August Inslerman, 38-year-old engineer for the General Electric Co., today appeared for the fourth successive day as a witness before the spy-hunting federal grand jury.

Two new witnesses also were on hand as the grand jury resumed its probe of Communist espionage activities. They were Prof. E. J. McShane, 44, of the University of Virginia, and Prof. John L. Kelley, 32, of the University of California.

Both are mathematicians. Their connection with the investigation was not disclosed.

The jury yesterday questioned Max Bedacht, expelled charter member of the American Communist Party.

Bedacht declined to tell reporters anything about his testimony before the grand jury, but said he is "a witness who intends to tell the truth."

"I will not lie for or against anybody," he said. "I have not been asked any questions I have not wanted to answer."

Bedacht, former Communist Party secretary, was expelled from the party last October 13 after what he described as a "life time" in the party. He said his political beliefs had not changed, and called his expulsion unfair.

He reportedly was ousted for allegedly opposing the leadership of William Z. Foster, national Communist Party chairman, and Eugene Dennis, general secretary.

Bedacht said he had met Whitaker Chambers "at meetings," but that he did not know the admitted former Communist agent "intimately."

He said he did not know Alger Hiss, former State Department official indicted for perjury in connection with his denying that he once supplied Chambers with confidential information.

Bedacht gave his address as a Frenchtown, N. J., farm, where he continued on Page Twenty-two

Foes May Honor U.N. Order For Palestinian Cease Fire

Tel Aviv, Israel, Jan. 6 (AP)—The Security Council order of December 29 for an immediate cease-fire in southern Palestine may be honored soon.

Israeli Cabinet Is Reportedly in Favor of Agreement; Egyptian Acceptance Was Sent Tuesday to Lake Success

The Israeli cabinet met last night. A usually reliable private source said the ministers, whose troops have wound up a three-day invasion strike into Egypt, decided to accept the order.

It was understood the acceptance might be announced today. The timing and other details apparently would be fixed by United Nations truce observers.

Egypt cabled her acceptance to Lake Success Tuesday, subject to a like decision from Israel. Egyptian and Israeli troops have been fighting in the Negev desert and the southern Palestine coastal strip off and on since mid-October.

A government spokesman last night announced the Israeli thrust into Egypt. He said Jewish troops, "in hot pursuit of the fleeing enemy," recently knifed to the Egyptian military base of El Arish, on the Mediterranean coast, 30 miles below the Palestine frontier. He said they killed or wounded several hundred Egyptians, captured several hundred more and seized or destroyed several planes, field guns, gasoline and other stores. El Arish air fields were reported damaged heavily.

The troops withdrew according to plan, the spokesman said, and there was never at any time any design on the part of Israel to occupy Egyptian territory.

He said the United States had made representations expressing the "desire for promotion of peace in the Middle East—a desire with which the Israeli government identifies itself completely."

"This information, which passed through Israeli censorship, did not give the invasion dates. The British Foreign Office disclosed Dec. 29, while the Security Council was considering its latest cease-fire order, reports of such a raid on El Arish. There was no confirmation from Tel Aviv at that time."

(A British government source said last night Britain might ask the Security Council to lift its embargo on arms shipment to Arab countries if Israeli patrol action on the Egyptian frontier continued. He said, however, there was absolutely "no question" of Britain going to war with Israel, as some British newspapers have suggested. A mutual defense treaty links Britain and Egypt.)

Some fighting was reported yesterday from the Negev, but it apparently was on a smaller scale than during the last few days.

Three persons were reported injured when an unidentified plane bombed a Jewish settlement east of Tel Aviv last night. Jerusalem and Tel Aviv also had alerts, but no bombs fell.

(The Egyptian War Ministry announced that Israeli attacks upon Egyptian positions near the frontier town of Rafa continued yesterday, but "the enemy was repulsed and retreated, leaving his dead and some of his weapons before our positions." Action of the day, it said, included an exchange of fire in the region of Sur Bahir, a village midway between Jerusalem and Bethlehem.)

An Israeli Army spokesman said two Egyptian planes were shot down by Jewish forces in the region of the Negev.

Owners of Dogs Will Answer Questionnaire for Council

All dog owners will receive an information sheet describing the steps taken by the Ulster County Rabies Advisory Council to control the spread of rabies in 1949. The sheet will include a questionnaire about the vaccination status of the dog to be filled out at the time the owner buys the 1949 dog license.

The staff of the Ulster County Department of Health has the responsibility to maintain sufficient information about the location of the dog population to carry out the policies of the Ulster County Rabies Advisory Council and the Ulster County Commissioner of Health regarding any future action in rabies control.

The cooperation of all dog owners in filling out the answers to these questions will enable the Health Department staff members to schedule work economically during any future rabies control program.

Three Items Key Points In His Plan

Constitute One Third of Expected Deficit Forecast; Defense Is Top Single Issue

Would Be 'Trust'

Health Program Seen as Following Pattern of Insurance

Washington, Jan. 6 (AP)—President Truman's new education, health and housing programs will account for less than $300,000,000 of his nearly $420,000,000 budget for fiscal 1950, administration officials said today.

The trio constitute key items in the "re-New Deal" program Mr. Truman set out in his presidential campaign and hammered home to the friendly 81st Congress in his state of the union address yesterday.

Although they make up only one per cent of the spending total, they are enough to account for around one-third of the budget deficit the President is expected to forecast for the fiscal year, starting next July 1.

He already is seeking a $400,000,000 increase in taxes, principally from corporations, to wipe out the deficit outlook and permit about a one per cent reduction in the $252,000,000 federal debt.

His budget message next Monday is said authoritatively to call also for a raise in some postal rates, particularly those applying to magazines and newspapers, as a further means of keeping the government out of the red.

Biggest factor in the budget total is "defense"—the combination of military and foreign aid items that will make up over half of the budget total.

Legislative leaders said after a White House conference yesterday that military costs, including a revived proposal for universal military training, and the cost of stockpiling strategic materials will come to $15,000,000,000.

Key Democrats predicted the total budget will be $419,000,000, the biggest yet in peacetime. The figures for the current fiscal year is $39,500,000,000.

Education Big Item
Administration officials said the President's proposal for education grants to the states for a national and high school system will be the big "re-New Deal" item at a cost of around $300,000,000 in 1950 and in each subsequent year.

The long-range housing program, which the President said should provide 1,000,000 low-rent public housing units over the next seven years, reportedly will carry a first-year price tag of under $100,000,000 though the cost would go up later as the program unwinds.

The National Health Program would get into the budget for administrative costs only—not more than about $20,000,000 the first year, officials indicated—but the budget sum as in the case of the proposal to expand Social Security, doesn't begin to tell the expense story.

The budgeted amount would represent only the sum to be taken from general tax funds to cover administrative costs of getting the health program under way.

The program itself would be set up as a trust created by the government after the fashion of an insurance concern, getting its premiums through taxes levied on all individuals entitled to the medical care benefits contemplated.

Joins Army to Get Back to His Fiancee

New York, Jan. 5 (AP)—Rolf Berndt, 33, has joined the army for love. He says he wants to be assigned to occupation duty in Germany, so he can be near his German fiancee, Doris Brigitte Von Knobloch.

Last October, the pretty 22-year-old Doris tried to smuggle herself to America—and to Berndt—by hiding inside a packing case to be loaded on a U. S. bound plane.

She was discovered when she opened the lid for air.

Berndt, a German-born refugee who met Doris in Berlin where he was a concentration camp prisoner for several years, said he has been in love so long that "it hurts."

After trying everything else, he said, he decided the army was the best way to get back to Germany—and Doris. He enlisted yesterday.

Coalition Is Not Given Any Chance In New Congress

Washington, Jan. 6 (AP)—Rep. Donald L. O'Toole (D-Brooklyn) thinks it unlikely the present Democratic-controlled Congress will witness an effective coalition of Republicans and southern Democrats to block liberal legislation.

O'Toole says such a coalition may be attempted but he says, "It is an effort foredoomed to defeat."

One reason that it is, he says, is because liberal sentiment is growing in Congress and will continue to grow. "Even a blind man can see this trend," he says. "The days of rock-ribbed conservatism are ended."

He thinks many Republicans, heretofore regarded as distinctly right of center, are in a mood to follow the new pattern.

"The recent election," he says, "has pointed out to them certain political facts of life that they can no longer ignore."

Similar thinking, O'Toole believes, is being demonstrated by the young southern newcomers to the House.

"The evidence is overwhelming," O'Toole says, "that they are simply not in accord with their elders."

A striking example of this, he says, developed at last Saturday's Democratic House caucus when the party voted 176-48 to curb powers of the influential House Rules Committee.

"It is highly significant," O'Toole told a reporter, "that the opposition failed to muster more than 48 votes. It illustrates very clearly what I mean when I say that the liberal sentiment is increasing."

"It proves conclusively that a strong majority of House Democrats do not wish to be hamstrung by procedures which, in the past, have succeeded in side-tracking legislation that deviated from the conservative pattern."

Unless all signs fail, O'Toole says he is positive that President Truman's legislative program is destined to receive "intelligent cooperation."

"His election, plus the defeat of so many Republican congressmen who opposed his stand, must make it plain to everyone—as it does to me—that enactment of Mr. Truman's program is the will of the people."

Woman Is Held Innocent by Jury

Philadelphia, Jan. 6 (AP)—A jury deliberated only a little more than an hour last night before finding Mrs. Dorothy Elizabeth Reeves innocent in the "honor" slaying of her sailor husband, Leslie, 29, last Sept. 5.

The plump, attractive 26-year-old defendant shook with sobs of relief and had to be supported by two court attendants as the jury of seven women and five men announced the verdict.

The state had sought to convict the woman on a charge of shooting her husband after he stayed out all night with her 13-year-old sister, Peggy Miles, of Nashville, Tenn. Mrs. Reeves testified she feared her husband had dishonored her sister.

Mrs. Reeves has two children who are staying at the home of her grandparents in Nashville. It was during the birth of her second baby that sister Peggy came to stay with her.

Both Mrs. Reeves and her sister testified on the final day of the trial.

Mrs. Reeves told of seeing her husband and sister return at 6 a. m.

"From my window," she said, "I could see my sister get out of the car. She was trying to straighten her dress. Her face was swollen. She was carrying her shoes and she looked like she had been through an ordeal."

Peggy testified Reeves made improper advances to her and mauled her so badly that she required hospital treatment.

Do You Remember

With Kingston's budget as usual getting front page at this time of the year, let's look back at our city's history from October 25, 1869, when it was first christened as the village of Kingston. It began to grow until it was the third town in New York state for its size, elegance, wealth and population. Then came October 16, 1877, with the British coming up the river to burn every house in town but one. So with one stroke, many persons of comfortable and even affluent circumstances were reduced to almost absolute want.

But 1783 records show that Kingston rebuilt itself to such an extent that the citizens proudly offered one square mile to the United States for the new Capitol.

In 1805 the village was organizing police and fire protection. When Rondout was incorporated April 4, 1849, into a village it was known to have a greater tonnage than any other place on the river above New York.

I find tax trouble in 1832, when the first schoolhouse was built at the foot of Wurts street on a ledge of rock. Only $300 could be raised by district tax, but $200 was fortunately subscribed later.

Church services were also held in this building, for the first church edifice erected in Rondout (Presbyterian) seemed to have been completed in 1835.

April 16, 1872—Kingston and Rondout were incorporated into a city, and at its first election, James Lindsley was elected mayor. The five boroughs then as now were Rondout, Wilbur, Wiltwyck, Higginsville and Ponchockie. Each of equal importance. No doubt even then budget and taxes made the front pages of the local press.

Well, it's a good thing we're not back to 1833, for instance, when Kingston didn't have any waterworks or general system of electric fire alarm, and the vicinity was lighted with gas. Can you imagine if suddenly our city was transported about 100 years back and we'd have to pay for all the conveniences which we have been enjoying right along to be built today at present prices? Like our city hall, high school, remove cobble-stones. All we have to do now, is to pay for the upkeep of what others built and paid for. Not a bad bargain. What do you think?

ANTIQUE POST OFFICE METHODS

A postman's lot, like a policeman's, is not a happy one. Some of us, during the Christmas season just past, may have squandered a sympathetic thought on the mail carrier and other postal employees as they struggled through the annual blizzard of letters and packages. But for the rest of the year we take his unhappy lot for granted.

However, the Hoover Commission has been giving plenty of thought to that unhappy lot in the course of its monumental inquiry into inefficient government operations. It has estimated, in a preliminary report, that $200 and $300 million a year might be saved in the post office department through changes and modernization.

Meanwhile, an idea of what might be done is given by Lester Velie, writing in Collier's magazine. The United States Post Office is the world's biggest employer and runs the world's biggest business, he points out. Yet some of its operations aren't even of the horse-and-buggy era. For all our mechanization and speed today, the postman still trudges his rounds toting a heavy sack, just as he has done since city mail delivery began.

What motorized assistance he does have is out of date. Mr. Velie adds. Postal truck bodies must be four feet off the ground, for that is the standard height of loading platforms. But postmen say that loading takes about half an hour a day, after which they must spend seven and a half hours hoisting themselves in and out of the vehicle.

These trucks are tough on the men who ride them and also tough on the taxpayer's pocketbook. The custom-built antiques cannot be turned out quickly or inexpensively. Some truck builders will not bid for post office business, Mr. Velie says. And an order for 1480 new "old" trucks last summer cost $500,000 more than modern trucks would have.

The letter carriers' union, the article states, would like to see some ancient methods and machines replaced by a mobile post office and a sorting machine. The mobile post office would be a light, inexpensive, low-slung truck with a detachable aluminum sorting case. It would carry parcel post as well as letters, and would pick up mail from storage boxes. Housewives could mail packages and buy stamps, money orders and such from the truck, instead of having to go perhaps a mile to a post office or substation.

It seems like a sensible idea, although the department so far has resisted it. And it also seems incredible, once it is pointed out, that anything as big and important as our mail service should not be as efficient and convenient as the delivery of milk or laundry.

There are two encouraging signs that something may at last be done to modernize postal methods. One is the Hoover Commission's work. The other is the fact that our present postmaster general, Jesse Donaldson, is not a politician, but a man who started in the postal service as a letter carrier.

Mr. Velie calls his article "Let's Give the Postman a Break." We think the Washington powers-that-be should do so. The hard-working, meagerly-paid courier does a fine job in the swift completion of his appointed rounds. But a little modernization would make that job swifter and easier, and lessen the accompanying discomforts of snow and rain and heat and gloom of night.

HIT AND RUN

One of the least understandable creatures of the automobile age is the hit-and-run driver.

It is said that to err is human. Probably human frailty is such that the most careful driver may sometime be involved in an accident for which he seems responsible. At the other extreme, many accidents are caused by drivers who are completely careless, or who have muddled their senses with drink until they can no longer control their cars. Somewhere between these two extremes are most of the drivers in accidents.

But if the driver was human in the error which brought him to a mishap, he certainly abandons all humanity if he then speeds

THE QUESTION OF HOSPITALS

The figures on persons in hospitals for 1948 not yet being available, I shall in this article use 1947 figures. The following is pertinent data:

A. Governmental
1. Federal hospitals	1,285,126
2. City, county, city-county, state hospitals	2,919,218
Total governmental	4,204,344
B. Non-governmental
1. Non-profit	10,177,508
2. Proprietary hospitals	1,447,662
Total non-governmental	11,625,170
National total	15,829,514

Obviously, the bulk of hospitalization is being carried by non-governmental institutions and in that category, the voluntary, non-profit institutions, dependent upon private charity, perform the greatest service. The Hoover Commission report on federal hospitalization indicates extravagance and waste by federal hospitals, particularly those controlled by the armed forces. In a word, the best job is still being done by voluntary institutions.

The principal complaint against the voluntary hospital, as against the entire medical profession, is that while the poor get excellent free service and the rich can afford excellent private service, the middle group, particularly the white-collar, middle-class fixed-income, have a hard time meeting doctor and hospital bills. This problem is being met by the various Blue Cross plans, to which about 32,000,000 Americans now belong, and which can be increased tremendously without government intervention. A practical matter of providing in advance for inevitable expenditures, the time is bound to come when every provident American will carry this kind of insurance as he does fire insurance. And it is a self-respecting method with neither private nor governmental charity.

In the present mood for socialization, various arguments are offered for enormous governmental expenditures which ultimately must mean government control of the $6,000,000,000 hospital plant of the United States. The dead hand of bureaucracy can destroy the wholesome flexibility of the voluntary hospitals which usually are controlled by a lay board familiar with local conditions and directed by a medical board of competent physicians and surgeons. The proof of the adequacy of our hospitals is that we have the largest plant in relationship to population and the best hospitals in all the world.

The criticism that areas in the United States lack hospital facilities is correct, but that can better be mended by private giving than by huge government outlays. And it needs to be done lest the bureaucratic case be justified. No private charity can be more justified or bring better results. The figures show that a hospital bed has a cost of $4,199 and that general hospitals alone require 195,000 more beds than the 1,925,222 that were in use in 1947. In a word, if private giving is to provide adequate hospitalization for the civilian population of the United States, plenty of money has to be contributed not only for plant but for upkeep as well.

In discussions on this and related subjects, the attitude of many, particularly younger persons, is that as we pay such high taxes and can save so little on our earnings, why not let the government do the entire job? Of course, the answer is that socialization, while often starting in areas in which private effort is inadequate, expands to total socialization and the ultimate destruction of private life. The point at which socialization is the most dangerous is the very beginning.

The weakness of Oscar Browning's position in advocating expanding government interest in this field is not that he wants more hospitals, more doctors, more adequate coverage in all that he is right. However, instead of working within the framework of a system that has been remarkably successful and developing it further so that it achieves even better results, he seeks to imitate the British socialistic system, which is not working well in England, as recent admission by British officials indicate. Oscar Browning is like so many New Dealers: He sees every other country's grass greener than his own, even if what he really sees is only a tumbledown desert.

That Body of Yours
By James W. Barton, M.D.

FOOD IN CASES OF LENGTHY ILLNESS

We know that if the heart stops and also the breathing, the end has come; thus the pumping of the blood and the breathing of oxygen into the lungs is the most important single condition in keeping us alive. What we know is important; but more important than we think is the food we eat.

In a slight or short illness, food is not so important because we know that the body can "live off itself" except for water and oxygen. However, in a long illness the proper kinds and amounts of food and the way food is served are most important; if the illness is to be shortened or the patient kept strong and comfortable.

In "Medical Clinics of North America," Drs. Frederick J. Stare, George V. Mays and Elizabeth K. Case, Harvard University, Boston, in an article on nutrition in long or protracted illness, state that the following foods if consumed daily serve as a model list to supply good nutrition: Milk or milk products; eggs, meat, fish or poultry; vegetables, including leafy green or yellow; fruits, including oranges and grapefruit; butter or margarine; potatoes; breads and cereals—enriched or whole grain.

As to the quantities of these foods, it will depend greatly on the appetite; and this is where attractiveness in the serving of the foods is important. An attractive tray of food starts the digestive juices flowing in the mouth, stomach and in the small intestines. "Large, messy servings often are revolting, not only to the sick, but to the well." As to quantities of the above foods, the physician should have the patient take daily 1 pint of milk; one egg; 4 ounces of meat, fish or poultry; 2 servings (1 cup) of vegetables, one of which is green or yellow; and 2 servings of fruits, one of which is citrus (orange or grapefruit).

Where animal proteins—meat, eggs, fish—are not available, then vegetable proteins—peas, beans and oatmeal—are good substitutes; tomatoes and raw cabbage can take the place of citrus fruits. In cases of long illness in which the heart is failing or blood pressure is high, cutting down on table salt at table and in cooking is advised.

Anybody Wanna Bet on the Hatch?

The Washington Merry-Go-Round
By Drew Pearson

Washington—One of the most highlighted witnesses ever to appear before the Un-American Activities Committee was glamorous Robert Taylor, star of "Escape," "Stand By For Action," "A Yank At Oxford," "Bataan," "Billy the Kid" and many other pictures. His testimony made front-page news across the country.

What never was published, however, is that witness Taylor also wrote the Un-American Committee a scorching private letter blasting its tactics and accusing it of merely being interested in publicity. Taylor's letter is something Congress may want to consider in relation to the committee's procedure in the future.

Taylor was asked to testify regarding the picture "Song of Russia" in which he acted. His testimony, taken in private, was later published, following which Taylor wrote this blistering letter:

"I've never cared a whole helluva lot for politicians, whether they be Republican or Democrat. And I've certainly never believed it inherent in my job as a motion-picture actor to aid in feathering any of their nests or to name by the way, which I have worked hard to build and maintain without any blemish. My last appearance to testify was valuable only insofar as publicity was concerned; my appearance in Washington can be valuable purely for the same reason. I firmly believe this to be utterly ridiculous and a waste of time, both for me and for the committee."

"These investigations, the way they are being run in Washington at the moment, remind me more of a three-ring circus than of a sincere effort to rid the country of a real threat."

"There's nothing any of us are going to tell them in Washington that the F.B.I. didn't know five years ago. Maybe it's easier to call twenty friendly names from Hollywood than to have a look at the F.B.I. files! Maybe it's better publicity for the home-state electorate too!"

White House Gallers
President Truman has been running true to form when it comes to White House visitors.

He hasn't changed a bit since election. If members of the Turkey Growers Association are in town, or a big distiller, or a youngster who has received a prize in school, they get in to see the President—if they ask for an appointment. But important leaders don't see the President—because they don't ask.

In other words, the people Truman sees are largely a hit-and-miss matter depending on his secretaries and his Military Aide. The President himself rarely reaches out and seeks the advice of people who are experts or those who have advice worth listening to.

For instance, on the list of White House callers recently were Louis Rosenstiel, head of Schenley Distillers, and Frank Verbeke, brew of Blatz beer. Both men had bet wrong on the election, and wanted a chance to make their peace with the little man who won.

Rosenstiel was so sure Dewey would win that he retained Herbert Brownell, Dewey's campaign manager, as his attorney, and invited Dewey for a yachting cruise after his victory. But having bet on the Democrats and asked for a chance to go in to see Truman.

Truman saw him. On the other hand, ex-Secretary of the Interior Ickes took off his coat during the campaign, traveled out to Montana at his own expense, made powerful speeches which swung liberal votes to Truman. He showed this loyalty even though he thought Truman would probably lose.

In return, two months after election, Mr. Truman, until this week, did not even invite Mr. Ickes to the White House to thank him for his help.

Unlike Mr. Rosenstiel, Mr. Verbeke and the Turkey Growers Association, Mr. Ickes didn't call up and demand to be let in.

Another Tennessee Feud
The White House is caught in a rip-roaring feud between the two Tennessee Senators—older Kenneth "Sluggo" McKellar and freshman Estes Kefauver.

So far McKellar hasn't taken one of his famous pokes at the junior Senator from Tennessee. But before Kefauver so much as took office, McKellar opened up with a verbal volley. The Senate clerk suspected that Kefauver would want to appoint several Tennesseeans to Federal jobs, so he fired a blistering, six-page letter at him.

"Several Tennessee newspaper people have told me," blasted McKellar, "that you are very anxious to cooperate with me. . . and the intimation was that I had refused to cooperate with you. I wonder what your idea of cooperation is? Is it that you want to do all the 'operating' and leave the 'co' to me?"

Anxious to get along, Kefauver called on the irate McKellar and tried to pacify him. But the peace mission backfired, and McKellar broke loose with a raw charge that Kefauver hadn't done anything to help re-elect President Truman. Kefauver chided McKellar for his attitude, and McKellar, on the contrary, he had campaigned for Truman ever since his opening speech.

McKellar Appeals to Truman

The senior Tennesseean, unpacified, then carried the feud to the White House. Writing a letter to Truman, he completely twisted Kefauver's remarks.

"I am informed," McKellar wrote the President, "that Mr. Kefauver is claiming to have helped you in Tennessee. This claim is without the slightest foundation. The papers which supported him, with one exception, were against you. . . and since the election he has limited to me personally that he had not mentioned your name except in his opening speech; and in the newspaper account of that first speech, he merely said he was going to vote for you as the lesser of two evils."

"I am informed he is now circulating the report that the White House has given orders to look only to his recommendations in making Tennessee appointments. I do not believe this and I think he is attempting to perpetrate a wrong on the various executive departments."

Learning of McKellar's letter, the younger Tennesseean sent a letter of his own to the White House, briefly citing the record of his own speeches for Truman.

The President apparently sided with Kefauver for he sent back an understanding letter saying he had been in politics too long not to appreciate the true situation in Tennessee.

Note 1—Actually McKellar did little more for Truman than to announce at the last minute that he would vote the straight Democratic ticket. When the votes were counted, the Democratic strength came from McKellar's stronghold in Western Tennessee.

Note 2—Anxious to get along with his cantankerous colleague despite this row, Kefauver voted for McKellar as President Pro Tem of the Senate.

Radicals Got Satisfaction and Conservatives Got Soothing Words From Truman in Message to Congress
By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, Jan. 6.—President Truman walked rather gracefully, the tightrope of equal balance as between conservatism and radicalism so far as the careful phrasing of his "state of the union" message was concerned.

But while the Conservatives got a dose of soothing words, it was the Radical side of American politics which derived more satisfaction.

Mr. Truman recommended in brief that America embark on a course of spending redistribution of property which has many of the earmarks of a program of state socialism such as has weakened Great Britain and caused the economic disintegration of Europe.

The President speaks favorably of American capitalism and the free enterprise system and then proceeds to show how effectively it can be undermined—something which should please Uncle Joe Stalin, who is betting on the inroads of socialism into the American economic system and the weakening of that structure.

Oddly enough, Mr. Truman, who says America is prosperous, does not give the slightest hint as to how artificial the present boom has been. When it is considered that nearly $15,000,000,000 is based on armament spending, made necessary by a mishandling of foreign affairs.

The President outlines many new projects involving the spending of more billions and asks for more taxes. Not a line or word in the message mentions economy or reduction of government expenditures or reduction of government payrolls.

Instead, there is a direct threat to American business by suggestions that government money be used to go into competition with existing enterprises or that loans of government money be made to subsidize those who cannot stand up as competitors under the free-enterprise system.

There is a vague reference to wage ceilings in connection with some form of price control, but such a return to wartime controls is something on which members of Congress of both parties differ.

Mr. Truman wisely refrained from spelling out how additional taxes should be levied. He evaded the issue with which labor-union leaders are concerned—whether there is to be a repeal of the Taft-Hartley Act and a restoration of the Wagner Act and later some amendments to the Wagner law. As written, the message could mean immediate amendment of the old Wagner law or a deferment of the amendment once a repeal of the Taft-Hartley Act is accomplished.

This, however, is something Congress will decide, and it appears certain that there will be no repeal of the Taft-Hartley Act till a substitute passes both Houses—a substitute that contains the main features of the Wagner Act and the Taft-Hartley law. Unwittingly, perhaps, Mr. Truman came out against the closed shop. The following language, whether so intended or not, will be quoted again and again in support of the closed-shop provisions of the Taft-Hartley Act, as Mr. Truman said:

"We believe that no unfair prejudice or artificial distinction should bar any American from an education, or from good health, or from a job that he is capable of performing."

The foregoing will be applauded as an excellent statement of the importance of all manner of civil rights in this country.

Perhaps the most startling section of the President's message is his sanction of the entering wedges to state socialism and government ownership. He advocates not merely the public ownership of transmission lines from the sources of electrical power but also threatened the steel industry and other key industries with what could conceivably lead to a nationalization program such as has been legislated in socialistic Britain.

Here is Mr. Truman's exact language proclaiming a program of coercion upon American industrial companies:

"To authorize an immediate study of the adequacy of production facilities for materials in critically short supply, such as steel; and, if found necessary, to authorize government loans for the expansion of production facilities to relieve such shortages, and furthermore to authorize the construction of facilities directly if action by private industry fails to meet our needs."

Another threat to use emergency powers, presumably related to shortages but introducing a phase of state socialism, is to be found in this hold if not naive confession of purpose:

"The authority which I have requested to allocate materials in short supply and to impose price ceilings on such materials, could be used, if found necessary, to channel more materials into homes large enough for family life at prices which wage earners can afford."

Here is a proposal that threatens existing property values and the mortgages held by life insurance companies and others constituting the savings of millions of citizens. Here is the government proposing to go into the housing business to build houses at prices lower than private industry can afford at present and to hold over the construction industry the threat of government control if not nationalization eventually.

To ask for powers to meet shortages and then to plan to use such powers to bring about socialistic reforms is not likely to bring confidence to the free-enterprise system which, under such schemes, would not long remain free to make management decisions or prudent use of invested funds. AS PEGLER SEES IT
By WESTBROOK PEGLER

Because he represented himself as a wise guy who saw that the Russians were turning against us, Adolf A. Berle, an assistant secretary of state from February, 1938 to December, 1944, came out of the hearings of the Committee on Un-American Activities with a better press than he deserved. He can be called a Good New Dealer in the sense that the Good Thief might have been worse.

An impudent gang they were, bandying the fate of the country from clique to clique, tattling and scheming in a feline rivalry for place and apparently never aware that the Faceless Man whom they all professed to love, must pay for their prinking with his bowels and his blood.

They never soiled their pretty hands in the way they hailed in freedom's early career. Alger Hiss, a fitter man to fight the Nazi than a million trembling American adolescents who did, was one of those exquisite indispensables. Berle, a precocious pixie, had bobbed up at the age of 23 as an "expert" on the staff of the American Commission to negotiate peace with Germany in 1918." Impudence runs through his testimony before the reviled committee of Congress which exposed the awful band too late.

On August 23, 1939, Whittaker Chambers spent several hours revealing to Berle a conspiracy to steal secret information from our State Department where Berle was assistant secretary of state, and turn it over to Muscovite spies. Now Berle quibbles and bloats in his pompous virtue, the great intellect who shrewdly detected Russia's treachery toward the United States years after simpler men had seen the truth with the naked eye. It wasn't exactly a conspiracy. It wasn't that they were Communists. It wasn't fair to be suspicious.

But Isaac Don Levine, who grew weary plodding from one fourflusher's door to another, smashed down this barricade of quibbles. "Chambers," he said, "unfolded (to Berle) a picture which showed a systematic, highly organized apparatus looting not only the State Department but government files in many other

Milton Collision

Shortly after noon Wednesday a milk truck owned by H. L. and F. McBride and driven south on Route 9W by William Shipman, 47, of Route 2, Warwick, and a sedan operated by Frank Earl Lange, 21, of Clover street, Poughkeepsie, collided. Trooper N. G. Loncakes of Highland barracks investigated. He reported the sedan, operated southerly, had pulled out from the Milton diner to go east when the vehicles collided. It was raining at the time. The vehicles were damaged but there were no injuries. The cars were able to proceed after the accident under their own power.

bureaus in Washington.

What did this supercilious cookie-pusher do? Did Mr. Berle raise hell to protect his country from treachery? Or did he just curl up and accept a daily departmental rebuff as a personal setback in a harmless game?

You have his answer in the record: "Mr. Hiss did take what we today would call a pro-Russian point of view. I got trimmed in that fight and, as a result, went off to Brazil (as ambassador) and that ended my diplomatic career." These were terrible charges even though Berle, from Harvard Law, of course, seemed to think that his own defeat in an elfin joust and the termination of his "diplomatic career" were events of greater importance in the story of mankind.

Why didn't he make something happen? Why did he wait almost ten years and let it to be dredged out of his reluctance by the abused and almost discredited committee of Congress?

How does Berle's testimony run? Listen: Robert Stripling, the American Major Dreyfus who was exiled from Washington and persecuted in the ominous status of army yardbird, is reviewing Chambers' story. He tells Berle that Chambers named the Hiss brothers—Alger and Donald—as members of an underground apparatus. He reminds Berle that Levine took Chambers to his home in Washington that night in August, 1939. Would Mr. Berle please discuss that for the committee?

Of course, Glad to, old muffin! Chambers told him he had been a Communist from 1924 to 1937 and had quit the party. He told Berle that the party was trying to develop a group of "sympathizers" not for espionage—Oh dear, no—but merely to get the benefit of their "sympathy." Well, who is going to trace the fictitious line between "sympathy" and "espionage" in the conduct of trusted officials of the State Department? Nobody can, of course. For these who "sympathized" with the Communist, either sympathized with vice and treachery, dishonesty and perfidy. No honest man can "sympathize" with crime. The Hiss brothers are alumni of Harvard law of course, and old proteges of Felix Frankfurter, of course.

The idea that the Hiss boys and Witt (another of the Harvard Law-Frankfurter cult) were going to take over the government didn't strike me as any immediate danger.

Very laughable, (pronounced laughable) really, you know.

However, Berle checked with Dean Acheson, of the pro-Russian team in the State Department, and with Frankfurter on the Supreme Court, and they vouched absolutely for the Hiss brothers, nevertheless, he caused the State Department to establish "very close relations" with the F.B.I.

There ensues now in the record a page of the wildest obfuscation that ever a writhing witness uttered.

Berle had the power to stop this whole thing. He had the brains to measure the danger and truly decide what duty was.

But he also has the Harvard law habit of returning muddy answers as set forth in Frankfurter's opinions. He wasn't suspicious of Alger Hiss. "A better way to say it is: I was worried. In the fall of 1945 there was a difference of opinion in the State Department. I felt that the Russians were not going to be sympathetic and cooperative. The opposite group was largely Acheson's group, with Alger Hiss as his principal assistant. Hiss did take what he would call today the pro-Russian point of view. That was reason for worry."

But what does Levine say about the story that Chambers told Berle? Does Levine go mincing and minneling between little islands of guilt and truth?

Here is what Levine swore to on Dec. 8:

Q.—How much detail did Chambers go into with Berle? He gave him the names of people in the Department of State?

A.—Yes, sir.

Q.—Who he said were looting or taking files and doing what with them?

A.—Photostating them and transmitting them to secret Soviet agents to be sent to Moscow.

Witnesses Called To Testify in Fix Of College Game

New York, Jan. 6 (AP)—Detectives and other witnesses were called to testify today before a grand jury investigating an alleged attempt by four men to bribe a player with $1,000 to "fix" a college basketball game.

The probe began yesterday with testimony by the player who reported the alleged bribe attempt, David Shapiro, 25, of Brooklyn, co-captain of the George Washington University team.

Shapiro, praised highly by the authorities for cooperating in a four-month undercover investigation which led to four arrests, returned to his studies at the university in Washington, D. C. Bail of $50,000 each was set yesterday for four men charged with attempting to bribe a participant in amateur sports and with conspiracy.

The defendants, all of whom denied offering a bribe, are: Jack Levy, 40, of Miami, Fla.; William Rivlin, 43, of New York; Joseph Aronowitz, 35, of Brooklyn; and Philip Klein, 24, of Brooklyn.

They were arrested Tuesday night—the night a "fix" allegedly was to have jugged the score of the Madison Square Garden game between George Washington University and Manhattan College, of New York.

Assistant District Attorney Alfred J. Scotti said a sister-in-law of Aronowitz, Sylvia Brill, 22-year-old Brooklyn bookkeeper—was questioned yesterday at the district attorney's office.

Scotti said Miss Brill was questioned about a New Year's Eve party at a hotel here because she reportedly was present when some of the men in the case met and, Scotti said, invited Shapiro to attend the party.

The questioning, Scotti said, was in an effort to determine whether basketball was discussed at that time. Scotti did not reveal to newsmen what Miss Brill told him.

Hogan said no further arrests are expected, and there is no evidence of an attempt to "fix" any other college game.

The prosecutor said Shapiro told him the defendants wanted him to make sure that Manhattan beat George Washington by at least 18 or 19 points. Manhattan, a 13-point favorite in the betting, was beaten 71 to 63.

Street Cars Bring Price
Chicago, Jan. 6 (AP)—Some of Chicago's old street cars are worth more dead than alive. Since the Chicago Transit Authority became owner of the city's trolleys on October 1, 1947, it has sent 727 of the ancient cars to the scrap pile. On the C.T.A. books they were valued at $325,000. As scrap metal they brought $392,745.

Pastor Is Recovering
The Rev. Herbert Killinder, pastor of Trinity Methodist Church, Wurts street, who underwent a stomach operation Monday.

FALSE TEETH That Loosen Need Not Embarrass

Many wearers of false teeth have suffered real embarrassment because their plate dropped, slipped or wobbled at just the wrong time. Do not live in fear of this happening to you. Just sprinkle a little FASTEREET, the alkaline (non-acid) powder, on your plates. Holds false teeth more firmly, so they feel more comfortable. Does not sour. Checks "plate odor" (denture breath). Get FASTEREET at any drug store.

day at Methodist Hospital, Sixth street and Seventh avenue, Brooklyn, is "getting on as nicely as could be expected," it was reported today. The pastor was admitted to the hospital shortly after Christmas. The Rev. Burton F. Farr, D.D., district superintendent, who is in charge of arranging services at the church during the pastor's absence, said that the latest report from the hospital indicated that the Rev. Mr. Killinder was making encouraging recovery.

Moscow, Jan. 6 (AP)—Soviet churches celebrate Russian Christmas Eve tonight. The Russians celebrate Christmas January 7, because of the difference in their calendar.

Truman Talk Is Praised by Europe

London, Jan. 6 (AP)—Western Europe, most of it under Socialist control, today generally interpreted President Truman's state-of-the-union message as evidence the United States will move further to the left.

And, generally, it was pleased. The Communists were pleased, too—but for a different reason. They seized upon the Chief Executive's program as propaganda to prove social and economic backwardness in the United States.

In Britain, however, the Independent-Liberal Manchester Guardian cited Mr. Truman's program as an indication that "Socialism is not the only path for the left. Its goal might be called the insurance state, its method the deliberate shortening of the odds against the weak, but without abandoning the basically individualist way of life which is accepted as characteristic American."

The London Evening Star, a Liberal paper also, said the President "has surpassed Roosevelt's New Deal in scope and political daring." It declared Mr. Truman has set himself a "colossal task."

and added: "The social revolution in America may be well under way by 1952."

In western Germany, the press took a similar line. The Frankfurt Neue Presse, independent, said the United States "is converting itself from a liberal to a social democracy for which the well-being of the masses is more important than the wealth of the few."

In Berlin, however, Russian-licensed newspapers reported the message under the headlines "Truman wants higher axes" and "Truman exposes shocking abuses."

They emphasized what they claimed was the President's confirmation of the low standard of living, lack of education, and capitalistic exploitation of American workers—all three favorite themes in the Communist press.

Berlin's allied licensed press hit the same subjects in a different way. It applauded the program as matching or surpassing the Roosevelt "reforms."

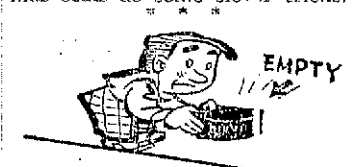

Almost unanimously, the French press tagged the program with the label "Socialism."

Says Bulbs Were Taken
The Rev. David C. Gause of the Evangelical Lutheran Church of the Redeemer, Wurts and Rogers streets, reported to the police at 3:30 Wednesday that someone had removed bulbs from Christmas decorations outside the church. Detectives Clarence Brophy and William Krum were assigned to investigate.

Three More Men Are Suspended by Firemanic Leaders

New York, Jan. 6 (AP)—New repercussions have hit New York city's fire department as the result of a party in the basement of a Manhattan firehouse.

Three more top fire department officials were suspended yesterday in connection with the affair.

Fire Chief Peter Loftus was taken off duty the day before, accused of breaking departmental rules by attending the firehouse party which allegedly included drinks and female entertainers.

Department trials are to be held later.

Fire Commissioner Frank J. Quayle, who ordered the suspensions, said charges were being prepared against four more officers, and four firemen.

He said they are being charged with being present at the affair in violation of departmental rules, forbidding the holding of such functions on firehouse premises.

There was no evidence of intoxication on the part of the firemen, Quayle said.

The three new officers suspended yesterday were Deputy Chief of Staff William H. Taubert, 59, with 35 years service; Deputy Chief of Department Joseph M. Ziegler, 53, with 31 years service; and Battalion Chief James M. McMahon, 53, with 31 years service.

Aviators have reported swift circling about planes which were flying at speeds up to 35 miles an hour.

Advises Liberal Grain for Cows

The bumper feed grain crop of 1948 means that all Ulster county dairymen should feed their cows more liberally than a year ago, William H. Palmer, county agricultural agent, said today.

Each milking cow should receive all the grain she can efficiently convert into milk and handle with safety, the farmers were advised by the agent and Prof. J. D. Burke of the animal husbandry department at Cornell.

"This does not mean wasteful feeding. It means that every cow should have all the hay and silage she can eat, and in addition, enough grain to maintain good body condition and full production. The quality of the hay and silage harvested this year is also above average, and this too will help make more milk."

Other suggestions were to supply good roughage, weigh the milk often from each cow to know daily production, supply plenty of water, free access to salt and minerals, and some outdoor exercise.

Another place that liberal grain feeding will pay big dividends this winter, said William Palmer, is in feeding dry cows. In addition to all the good quality mixed or legume hay that dry cows will eat, feed them one-half to three-fourths pounds of grain per hundred pounds of body weight.

Calves and young stock also need to be liberally fed for rapid growth, William Palmer said.

New Orleans Has Mardi Gras Season To Keep It Busy

New Orleans, Jan. 6.—(U.P.)—Scarcely catching its breath after the greatest of Sugar Bowl sports weeks, New Orleans plunges today into the biggest Mardi Gras season of its fun-filled history.

More balls, more parades, and apparently more visitors than ever before are the prospect for the period of mirth and make-believe which lasts from Twelfth Night to Shrove Tuesday.

For 120 years, except during wartime, the city has indulged in the pre-Lenten spree. And almost every year the celebration seems to grow.

Mardi Gras itself is Shrove Tuesday, the day before Ash Wednesday ushers in the solemnity of Lent. The date this year is March 1.

But the traditional opening of the carnival season is the ball of the Twelfth Night revelers, held annually on Jan. 6, the feast of the Epiphany, the Twelfth Night after Christmas.

The ball tonight will be the first of 60 booked for the Municipal Auditorium. The number is 13 higher than last year's all-time record.

At least eleven major street parades, two more than in 1948 and also a new record, are planned for the final days of the season. In addition, there'll be a couple of processions on the river, a parade of more than 100 decorated trucks bearing groups of costumed maskers, and scores of neighborhood and school pageants.

How many thousands visit New Orleans for Mardi Gras? No count can be made. Tens of thousands come in from nearby points for a day at a time, without taking rooms here. During the climax of the whirl, guests occupy all facilities in hotels, tourist courts, hundreds of private homes, and parked railroad sleeping cars.

Thousands more, unable to find rooms in the city, spill over into hotels and tourist courts for a hundred miles or more. They drive in by the day for the festivities.

For visitors, there will be few outward signs of Mardi Gras for several weeks, except for decorating of streets and buildings in the carnival colors of purple, green and gold. The outdoor pageants are crowded into the last ten days.

General street masking is permitted only on Mardi Gras itself. On that day, citizens of all ages roam the streets in any costume their imaginations and pocket-books can devise.

Negroes — and thousands of white persons — strive mainly for a glimpse of the Zulu king, ruler of the Negroes' celebration, who rides in jungle splendor at the head of a procession of spear-bearing warriors.

The climax of Mardi Gras comes at midnight, when Rex, king of carnival, and his queen leave their ball and go to meet the Royal Sovereigns of Comus, who are reigning at their own ball.

Aunt Jemima Coming To Kingston This Week

Aunt Jemima, famous southern cook of the Quaker Oats Company, will be in Kingston over this week-end. She plans to be at the Smith Avenue Bull Market Friday afternoon and Saturday to serve hot pancakes made after her own recipe from the ready-mixed flour whose packages bear her well-known picture.

Aunt Jemima has visited here in past years, and while she does not care much for the snow she has always encountered, reports favorably on the friendliness and warmheartedness of the people of Kingston. She hopes to meet many of her old acquaintances once again around the griddle, and invite everyone to attend her pancake party.

Food Manufacturer

Has Optimistic Outlook

Cambridge, Mass., Jan. 6—John E. Cain, New England food manufacturer and distributor, has an optimistic outlook for 1949. He believes business will be good, and furthermore, he expects prices of many commodities, particularly in the family foodbasket, will be lower.

Mr. Cain isn't one who "just talks" about the future. He's a man of action, and as evidence, he announced today that he has slashed prices of many of his Cain Foods, including mayonnaise, sandwich spread, salad dressing and tartar sauce. The reductions in these quality products will approximate 20 per cent.

As president of the John E. Cain Company of Cambridge, Mr. Cain also announced that he was backing up his price-drops with an aggressive newspaper advertising campaign throughout New England and New York state. Newspaper advertising, which for several years has been the backbone of all Cain promotions, will continue as the chief advertising media in 1949.

Use Canned Paste

Canned tomato paste may be added to chili con carne instead of canned tomatoes or tomato juice. Or a few tablespoons of chili sauce or catchup may be used to give tomato flavor to the meat and bean dish.

a permanent foundation under the skating rink building at the Recreation Field.

Other improvements will be a ceiling of knotty pine and a proper brick chimney. Adolph Heckroth is contributing the electrical work necessary in connection with the building, which was moved some weeks ago to its new location at the south end of the enlarged skating rink by Road Superintendent Howard France.

Earl Stoutenburgh has been engaged as winter director of the recreation program and will be in charge during skating weather afternoons and evenings from 3 to 9 p. m. Refreshments will be available for a reasonable charge. Young people and adults look forward to much enjoyment at the rink and clubhouse during the winter months.

Woodstock Sculptor In Religious Exhibit

Woodstock, Jan. 6.—Alfeo Faggi, local sculptor of international prominence, is one of 15 artists whose work will be exhibited at the Demotte Galleries from January 12 to February 10, under the sponsorship of The Liturgical Arts Society. This society, which began promoting the cause of art in the religious sphere over 20 years ago, conceived and financed a sculpture project for which the 15 artists were invited to produce a 30-inch model of a religious subject taken from a list suggested by the society.

The program has been designed for the improvement of religious sculpture suitable for church use. Maurice Lavanoux, well known for his liberal ideas in religious art and secretary of the society, spoke at great length on this subject at the Woodstock Art Gallery a little over a year ago. At that time many of the local artists showed great interest in the Liturgical Arts field which they discussed with Lavanoux.

For his subject, Alfeo Faggi chose a Crucifix. Other artists and subjects whose work will be seen in the exhibition include "Madonna and Child" and various saints including "Joan of Arc" by Helene Sordou and Henry Ros; "Saint Francis of Assisi" interpreted by the western artist, Charles Umlauf; a "Pieta" done by Robert Laurent; a Crucifix and "Mother and Child" by Ivan Mes-trovic. Selected for the work also are Richmond Barthe, Jean de Marco, Charles Cutler, Janet de Caux, Henry Kreis, Orsonzio Maldaroli, Erwin F. Frey, Suzanne Nicolas, and K. George Kratina.

With three museum directors, the late Mrs. Juliana Force, Philip R. Adams and Daniel Catton Rich serving with the Rev. John La Farge, S. J. as chairman, the committee to select sculptors for the project was certainly one to assure a reasonable independent result and a competent balanced choice from among somewhat conservative and relative modern artists alike.

At the time of his Woodstock visit, Lavanoux told his listeners that one of the main purposes of the society was to attempt in some measure to restore religious art to the position it once held throughout the world.

Legion Auxiliary Reports on Visit To Castle Point

Woodstock, Jan. 6.—Woodstock Unit 1026, American Legion Auxiliary, has issued the following report prepared by Mrs. William Klippel, president, on its activities in connection with the Castle Point Christmas work.

"On Wednesday evening, December 8, 17 auxiliary members, Legionnaires and two non-members met in the Legion rooms to wrap gifts, bundle books and magazines and polish apples for the hospitalized veterans at Castle Point. Sixteen people made the annual pilgrimage to the hospital on Sunday, December 12, taking with them 124 Christmas gift packages, five bushels of apples, 1,160 current, educational and scientific magazines, 21 games, 26 best seller books, 120 comic magazines and 50 pocket edition books. The gifts were presented to patients in Wards D3, A1 and A2 and the apples were left in the recreation and day rooms of these wards.

"One hundred twenty of the Christmas packages were identical and contained toothpaste, shaving cream, writing tablet, pencil, soap, cigarettes, Christmas folders and stamps, as well as decorated box matches, postcards, chewing gum, woolen socks and candy cane. Four extra gifts were given to four hospitalized lady patients.

"Visitors from other parts of the state marvelled at what our unit was able to accomplish in this very worthwhile cause. The total value of the Christmas rehabilitation work for the Woodstock Unit during the month of December was $655.53.

"Our appreciation is expressed to rehabilitation chairman, Mrs. Harry Kutzschbach, without whose untiring, almost single-handed work this wonderful result would not have been possible.

"We also express our sincere gratitude to members and non-members who contributed toward the Christmas packages given by the Woodstock unit to the hospitalized veterans. Apples were donated by Mrs. Linda Sahler, Mrs. Eva Elwyn and Floyd Stone. Cash donations were received from Mrs. J. Albert Montgomery, Mrs. Watson Riseley, Mrs. L. Kreyer and Mrs. Ismael Rose. To one and all who gave us such splendid assistance, sincere and heartfelt thanks goes out to you in the name of the Woodstock Unit 1026, American Legion Auxiliary."

Dyrus Cook House Is Sold to Louis Doherty

Woodstock, Jan. 6.—A sale has been negotiated by George A. Neher for Mrs. Catherine and Louis Doherty who it is reported have purchased the house owned by Mr. and Mrs. Dyrus Cook. The new owners expect to take possession April 1.

Although still in the planning stage, Dyrus Cook stated that he has been offered the use of the painting room at the Academy of Applied Arts, Chicago, where he proposes a series of three evenings per week to include telling stories titled "Unconventional Traveling," lectures, and readings from his book "City of God." Mr. Cook resided in Chicago for a period of 12 years before coming to Woodstock nearly 30 years ago.

Mrs. Cook who is the well-known craftsman, Edith A. Roberts, will continue with her crafts work until spring.

Mr. and Mrs. Cook will be missed in Woodstock should they eventually decide to settle permanently elsewhere.

William Pachner Show Is Anxiously Awaited

Woodstock, Jan. 6.—Critics, artists and laymen are awaiting with great expectation the opening of William Pachner's one-man exhibition at the American Associated Artists Galleries Monday, Jan. 10, when three large paintings will be presented.

Close friends enjoyed the privilege last summer of seeing the first of these three paintings, "Israel" at a private showing in the studio of Miss Alice Wardwell, Jaydeliffe. In commenting on the work, writers and artists alike described it as being beautiful, inspirational, and symbolic.

Pachner's last one-man show was in the Weyhe Galleries last winter. It was a very successful exhibition received with great enthusiasm and appreciation by critics and public alike. It was learned that Homer Saint-Gaudens who could not be in New York at the time requested that the paintings be kept intact until he could see them. This resulted in an invitation to exhibit in the Carnegie annual last fall.

The exhibition at the American Associated Artists Galleries will continue through January 19.

Card Party on 17th

Mrs. Klippel also announced that the unit will hold a card party at the Legion clubhouse, Monday evening, January 17 at 8 p. m. No admission will be charged but a collection taken at the door.

Around the Village

Many Woodstockers are complaining of sore and tired muscles this week after the bailing out job made necessary by the high waters of last week. Artist Edna Thurber counted 225 pails of water she personally removed from her cellar so as not to endanger motors. The Sidney Benckowitz family was in New York when cellars began flooding but Dave Hultine had the current in the Benckowitz house shut off which apparently saved the day for them for upon their return, the fire department pumped out the cellar and when the current was turned on, all equipment worked perfectly. Justice George J. Brandy did not fare so well and reports the purchase of a new motor. Betty Barnes took shelter in the hotel when her heating system bogged down and her cats had a vacation at Wopowog Kennels for the duration. Among the numerous other households suffering from the floods were the Austin Medeiros and Allen Waterous. Artist Peggy Maguire plans to leave by bus on Sunday en route to Mexico. She will make several stopovers on the way to make sketches.

Gloria Shultis and Roger Jones are on their way to Miami Beach where they will join Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Jones at the Kingston Hotel.

We hear that Mrs. James Tuck and small daughter have flown to California for a visit with Martha's mother.

Mrs. Virgil VanWagonen, Bears-ville, and Mrs. Herbert Cutler, Kingston, board members of the

Ashokan Gets Four Billion Gallons

Rainfall Wednesday at the Ashokan headworks totaled one inch, it was reported by the New York City Department of Water Supply, Gas and Electricity. The amount of water stored at the Ashokan reservoir this morning is slightly more than 98 billion gallons, or about four billion gallons more than was reported following the storm of last week-end.
Streams in the county had receded sufficiently since the last storm to carry off the additional inch of rain which fell Wednesday, and no additional flood reports were received today.

planes bomb near the obscure village of Taoyuanist killed Liu on Dec. 13.
"His leg was torn off and he received body wounds which killed him," Teng said. "This time his death definitely has been confirmed. At least five other high Communist officers died with him."
Liu many times previously had been reported killed but always re-appeared on the scene. The government spokesman said it was probable that the Russian trained Liu had been succeeded by Chen Kong, Whampao Military Academy graduate who had been his subordinate.
Teng also informed foreign correspondents that military authorities will impose censorship on their stories "when the fighting gets nearer." He promised to inform them in advance and added their stories "would be handled with the greatest of care."
His statement, which was in conflict with information that messages already were being censored, added that the whole subject of censorship was being carefully and sympathetically considered by military authorities.

G.O.P. Ire Aroused

over assignments to the Foreign Relations Committee.
Republican ire was aroused yesterday when the Democratic steering committee put the foreign relations group on an 8 to 5 ratio. In the last Congress the Republican majority took seven seats, and gave the Democrats six.
The Republicans blasted the Democratic division as "partisan" and "political." Their foreign policy leaders, however, gave no hint they would turn against President Truman's announced policy of encouraging "free states and free peoples throughout the world."
At the same time it was made quite clear that they would disagree, in and out of committee, with details of foreign spending and other programs if they found fault.
Democratic leaders immediately denied the G.O.P. charges. They said a bipartisan approach to foreign problems could and should continue.
Senator Vandenberg (R-Mich.), retiring foreign relations chairman, keyed Republican resentment. He said in a Senate speech: "I cannot allow this occasion to pass without stating for the record my very great disappointment that the Democratic conference has seen fit to take the first partisan action in opposition to the theory and spirit of bipartisan cooperation in foreign affairs which has occurred in the last two years."
"We are still in the grip of those times * * * when, in respect to foreign relations, we must think of our country first and our party last."

Senator Barkley (D-Ky.), Democratic steering committee chairman, said it was solely a question of giving Democrats their rightful representation in proportion to their Senate strength. The vice president-elect told the Senate neither Vandenberg nor his friends need be "uneasy" about the future of foreign policy.
The Democrats awarded their party 8 to 5 ratios on eight of the Senate's 15 standing committees. Six were maintained on the old 7 to 6 basis and the appropriations group was made 13 to 8, instead of 12 to 9 as in the last Congress.
Senator Smith (R-N.J.), a member of the Foreign Relations Committee, told the Senate he was "deeply shocked" and "distressed" by the 8 to 5 allocation. But he added that "I should be the last one ever to desert the bipartisan approach—not for one minute."

Duck Fricassee With Vegetables Is Good!

BY GAYNOR MADDON

NEA Staff Writer

There is more than one way to enjoy a duck. Here are two:
Duck Fricassee With Vegetables (4 to 6 servings)

Five to 6-pound Long Island duckling, dressed weight; 2 tablespoons duck fat; 1 clove garlic, minced; 3 tablespoons flour; 3 ounces can sliced broiled mushrooms; 3 tablespoons sherry or sherry flavoring; 1 teaspoon powdered thyme; 1 teaspoon salt; 8 small white onions, peeled; 8 small carrots, trimmed.

Remove skin and fat from duck. Cut duck in serving-size pieces. Cook skin and fat with giblets and neck in 2 cups water and 1 teaspoon salt, until giblets are tender or about 45 minutes. Drain off liquid. Allow fat to rise to top, then pour it off. Place 2 tablespoons of the duck fat in Dutch oven or large frying pan over moderate heat. Brown pieces of duck lightly and remove to warm plate. Add garlic to fat and cook 1 minute. Stir in flour. Add contents of can of mushrooms, sherry or sherry flavoring and 1½ cups duck broth. Cook, stirring constantly, until sauce thickens. Add kitchen bouquet, thyme, and salt. Place onions, carrots, coarsely cut duck giblets and pieces of duck in sauce. Cover tightly and cook over moderate heat until duck and vegetables are tender, about 45 minutes. Serve immediately with hot cooked rice on the side.

Duck à la Spanish Style

(4 to 6 servings)

Five to 6-pound Long Island duckling, dressed weight; 3 tablespoons duck fat; 1 clove garlic, minced; 3 tablespoons flour; 2 cups duck broth; 3 tablespoons tomato paste; 1 teaspoon chili powder; ½ cup sliced, stuffed olives; ½ cup flour; ½ teaspoon salt; 1 teaspoon baking powder; 1 tablespoon sugar; 1½ cup cornmeal; 1 egg; ½ cup milk; 2 tablespoons duck fat, melted.

Have butcher cut duckling in quarters. Cook duck, including giblets, in 3 cups water and 2 teaspoons salt in Dutch oven. When tender, remove duck. Strain broth. Allow fat to rise, then pour it off. Place 3 tablespoons fat in saucepan. Add minced garlic and cook over low heat 2 minutes. Stir in flour. Add 2 cups of the duck broth. Cook, stirring constantly, until sauce thickens. Stir in tomato paste and chili powder. Correct seasonings to taste, if necessary. Remove meat from bones in large pieces, cut giblets in medium-size pieces, and add to sauce. Lightly stir in olives. Heat thoroughly and pour into baking dish (10 x 6 x 2 inches). Meanwhile sift flour, salt, baking powder and sugar into 1-quart mixing bowl. Stir in cornmeal, then add egg and milk, stirring quickly and lightly until mixed. Stir in melted fat. Top duck mixture with corn bread batter. Bake in hot oven (400 degrees F.) until corn bread is done, about 20 minutes.

part of starting out the health insurance program with a payroll tax of one-half of one per cent of each beneficiary's pay, with the "contribution" tax sum jumping after a year or two—presumably to 3 or 4 per cent.

As in the case of Social Security tax collections, these receipts would be transferred to the health insurance fund without counting them among budgeted tax collections or other receipts. Benefit payments paid by the fund would be excluded from budgeted expenditures.

A bill to provide health insurance for 125,000,000 persons in the nation's 145,000,000 population was introduced yesterday by four of the President's strongest supporters.

The four, all Democrats, are Senators McGrath (R.I.), Wagner (N.Y.), Murray (Mont.), and Rep. Dingell (Mich.).

Their bill also followed up a recommendation of the President by proposing extension of the old-age and survivors insurance system to 25,000,000 persons additional to the 30,000,000 now covered.

Also proposed was a doubling of average benefits, which now amounts to about $25 a month in the case of retired workers, plus a similar extension and liberalization of payments under the Unemployment Compensation System.

The Carolina parakeet, which once ranged as far north as Wisconsin, now is restricted to Florida and is almost extinct.

ment of disability benefits for his employees by making a contract for this purpose with an insurer, subject to the approval of the Commissioner and to standards and conditions to be prescribed by him. Subject to the Commissioner's approval and subject to rules and regulations to be promulgated by him an employer may, as a self-insurer, guarantee payment of disability benefits to his employees.

The weekly benefit rates vary according to the weekly wages. An employee earning $21 and under will receive weekly benefits of $10 per week. The benefits are roughly about 50 per cent of the last weekly wage of the employee, but in the case of employees earning over $21, the benefit rate is $21 per week.

Benefits shall be payable for not more than 13 weeks of disability for any one continuous disability. No disability benefits shall be payable for the first week of any continuous disability and only such weeks of disability shall be compensable as to which notification was given.

"Continuous Disability" under the law means any continuing or recurring disability which is due to a single general cause until seven or more consecutive weeks intervene on which no disability exists. "Disability" means the incapability on any day of a person to perform his usual employment or any other for which he is reasonably fitted by training and experience because of physical or mental conditions not including those resulting from pregnancy, deliberately self-inflicted injuries, injuries incurred in the performance of an illegal act, or accidental injuries arising out of and in the course of employment including such disease or infection as may naturally and unavoidably result therefrom.

If a person has not been separated from employment, disability within the meaning of the law exists if he is incapable of performing his usual employment because of the reasons and under the conditions set forth in the law; it is not required that he be incapable of performing any other employment for which he is reasonably fitted by training and experience.

area by flood waters from two rivers.

Columbus was virtually isolated. Fifty thousand acres of land were flooded.

Driven From Homes

Another thousand persons were driven from their homes in Alabama and Tennessee. Rivers rose in North Georgia, but no serious flood danger was forecast.

Rail and highway traffic in the Birmingham and Gadsden, Ala., areas was curtailed by the surging waters. More than six inches of rain fell in Birmingham in 30 hours, a new January record.

In the storm-swept west, the army and the Red Cross workers, as well as hundreds of civilians, joined in the efforts to bring relief to the thousands suffering from cold and lack of food.

The army of rescue workers battled through the huge snow drifts in the blizzard area in efforts to reach the thousands stranded by the storm which had lashed the plains for three days. Military and civilian planes flew over the snow-covered region, dropping food and clothing to hundreds in stalled automobiles and trains. There were numerous stories of heroic rescues.

The known death toll in the storm belt was five. However, fair-was expressed it might rise after the drifts finally are cleared.

Some trains started moving and snow plows kept at work clearing tracks. However, 18 passenger trains with 2,240 aboard remained tied up in Wyoming. The Union Pacific planned to start its east-bound trains moving.

A Red Cross train picked up about 600 stranded persons at Rockport, Nunn and Lone Tree in Colorado and took them to Denver. Some in need of medical aid were left off at Greeley, Colo., and others at Cheyenne, Wyo.

One trip to the store—One quick "bowl-mix"—Gives me two pounds of delicious Nucoa ready to use!

Yes... "BOWL-MIX" TWO POUNDS TOGETHER AS QUICKLY AS ONE... GET EVEN COLOR FOR ATTRACTIVE SERVINGS...

(And no extra cost tacked on for a "squeeze bag"!)

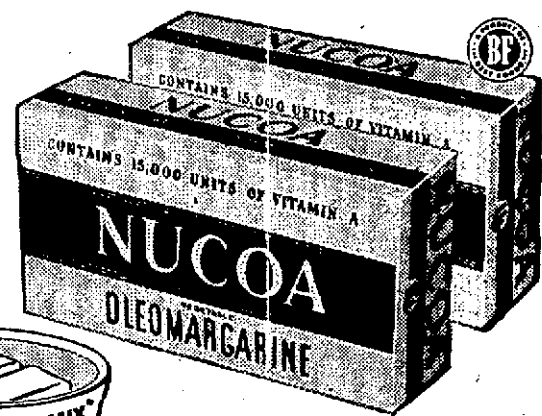

• "It's a waste of money," thousands of women tell us, "to pay two to three cents extra for margarine in a 'squeeze bag'."

What you really want, of course, is to buy yellow margarine at the modest price it can be made for you, right in the churn—when the law permits! Until then, the makers of Nucoa refuse to add one penny of trick-package cost to this top-quality margarine.

And money isn't the only saving! With Nucoa's easy "bowl-mix" you can save time and bother by coloring two pounds together, make it just the degree of yellow you like; mold it in balls, squares or other shapes to suit your taste.

"And it colors so much more evenly!" women say.

Millions agree! Ask your grocer for Nucoa—America's most popular margarine.

Yellow Nucoa available now in states whose laws permit the sale of colored margarine. Here's hoping that SOON the law will let you have yellow Nucoa everywhere—and at no extra cost to you for Federal and state taxes and license fees.

Bills Proposed in Legislature

Albany, N. Y., Jan. 6 (AP)—A bill before the 1949 Legislature to permit the manufacture and sale of colored oleomargarine appeared headed today for stiff opposition from dairy interests.

Republican Senator Walter J. Mahoney of Buffalo introduced the measure yesterday. It was among 70 Senate bills and 74 Assembly measures tossed into legislative hoppers on opening day.

Mahoney told a reporter his proposal would create "considerable controversy." But he predicted it would be approved.

"After all," he commented, "the consumers who want yellow margarine are a larger body than the interests which object to it, such as the milk producers."

Dairy interests in the state's large milk-producing area are sure to fight the bill. They argue that widespread use of colored oleo would knock down butter prices which are used as a factor in determining milk prices.

Butter substitutes, such as oleo, now can be sold only in uncolored form.

Also introduced in the Senate yesterday were several labor measures by William F. Condon, Yonkers Republican.

Condon proposed that workers retain their rights to unemployment insurance benefits if they had been locked out by employers or if they had not participated in a strike, which resulted in their unemployment.

Another measure he introduced would put a $300-a-month level on wages being considered in computing death benefits under the workmen's compensation law. The maximum now is $275.50.

Condon also proposed to extend workmen's compensation coverage to state and municipal employees and to employees of education boards or higher education boards, including teachers and supervisors.

Assembly bills introduced yesterday would:

Permit state policemen to change their rates of contributions to the state employees' retirement system so they would be eligible for retirement after 20 years' service, instead of 25 years as at present.

Increase from one to two years the license period for beauty parlors and barber shops.

Authorize withholding state aid money from schools which teach doctrines subversive or contrary to the U. S. or state constitutions.

Create a temporary nine-member commission and appropriate $50,000 to probe labor practices affecting stevedores and dock employees in New York city.

Aid to Video Enthusiasts—Assemblyman Philip J. Schupier introduced a bill today which would allow tenants to install television aerials without their landlords' consent.

The Kings Democrat said, in a statement, that "many unscrupulous landlords are compelling tenants to grant 15 per cent rent increases before permitting them to install television sets."

The measure provides, however, that the tenant would be liable for any increased insurance costs directly attributable to the maintenance of such equipment.

Another television bill was introduced yesterday by Assemblyman Joseph A. Marlinis, Bronx Democrat.

His measure would prohibit "unlawful charges by landlords" for permission to install, maintain or operate television sets if no admission charge was made for viewing the telecasts.

Broadway Theatre Vaudeville Acts

The Four Marcos, an acrobatic act consisting of father, mother, son and daughter, will head the five-act professional vaudeville show at the Broadway Theatre on Friday and Saturday, January 7 and 8.

The Marcos, appropriately billed as "A Family Affair," open their act with the parents, Bob and Joan, staging an unusual routine of balancing and headstand feats. Then they bow out and a miniature edition takes over. Jerry, age six, and Jackie, age four, wearing "the same costumes as their mother and dad, repeat the same stunts, with all four collaborating on the finale.

One matinee and two evening performances will be presented daily, in addition to the screen feature "The Checkered Coat" with Tom Conway. During the matinee an additional screen attraction will be shown.

Comedy will keynote the rest of the program, with the Three Swifts, who have just finished an engagement at New York's Radio City Music Hall, closing the show with their "New Angle of Humor" act.

Julie Cummings, young impersonator, will offer a "Date With Hollywood Stars", presenting impressions of Martha Raye, Carmen Miranda, Ned Sparks, Katherine Hepburn, Bette Davis and Tallulah Bankhead.

Ted and Art Miller, the "Laugh Provokers" will be seen in a novelty comedy act, and will also serve as double masters of ceremonies. Fifth act will be Jackie Farrell, young comedian, and pianist.

Engine Analyzer—An airplane engine analyzer, capable of diagnosing engine troubles while the plane is in flight, has met performance tests successfully and is going into commercial production.

Dairy Byproduct—Grains and fruits presently may have to move over to make room for whey as starting material for fermented drinks. This byproduct of the dairy industry, now largely wasted, is the basis for beverages made by a newly patented process.

INVITATIONS, CARDS TO SEND TO BEREAVED

Many readers have asked this same question: "Often I have wondered whether it is correct to invite people in deep mourning to social functions, to which I know they will not come, in order to let them know they have not been forgotten. It seems heartless on the one hand and lacking in thought on the other. So which side wins out? A similar question applies to sending them Christmas and birthday cards."

Announcements and invitations to weddings are properly sent. The typical "Merry Christmas" and "Joyous New Year" and "Happy Birthday" messages would be thoughtless, but there are many cards to be had for all such situations that express love and faith and these would be very appropriate.

Serious Payment Question

Dear Mrs. Post: We had relatives stay with us lately and as I had cooked a large turkey dinner with all the trimmings the first day, they suggested the next night we go out to dinner. I insisted, in fact. That we did, but in the restaurant they made no move to take the check or even to share it. It was a real hardship to us and I could have cooked dinner at home for half the price. Because it was their suggestion that we go out wasn't it up to them to have us as their guests?

Serving Fish on Ice

Dear Mrs. Post: Is it ever the right way to serve shrimp, oysters or clams right on a bed of ice? I insist that the oysters would have to be in the shells to lay on the ice and that any other fish would have to be in a glass and then that put on the ice.

Answer: You are right. Either Piece of Silver Proper. Dear Mrs. Post: When serving as a first course a mixture of avocado and celery, etc., cut up and served with Russian dressing in a stemmed glass lined with lettuce, what piece of silver should be provided? Teaspoon or oyster fork?

Answer: Fork if large pieces; otherwise spoon.

Mrs. Post's booklet, No. 502, "The Etiquette of Letter Writing," gives suggestions for notes as well as the color and quality of paper to use. Agudas Achim Group Announces Reception Featuring Speaker

The Women's Group of Congregation Agudas Achim, West Union street, will hold a membership reception Wednesday evening, January 12, in its social hall. The program for the evening will feature Elizabeth Isaacs, national president of the Women's Branch of the Union of Orthodox Jewish Congregations of America, of which the local women's group is an affiliate.

Mrs. Isaacs is not new to Kingston, having won many admirers when she addressed the Women's Group several years ago. Her reputation as a dynamic speaker of warm sincerity and great charm, has motivated the group's invitation for her return visit. Mrs. Isaacs' timely talk will deal with the role of the sisterhood in the contemporary scene.

Another feature of the evening will be a musical interlude, a short dramatic narrative with vocal accompaniment. Entitled "The Synagogue," the dramatic narrative which will be presented by the members of the Orthodox Sisterhood of Beacon, was written especially for the women's branch and has been successfully performed by them in their home community. It also has been broadcast for the radio audience of Station WGN, Newburgh.

Mrs. Henry Singer, well-known local pianist, will serve as accompanist for audience-participated singing which will conclude the program.

Only 34 states give women the right to serve on juries.

Sicklers Game Called Off; Play at Woodridge Saturday Night

West Point Cagers Unable to Appear Due to Icy Roads

Dangerous road conditions in and around the Storm King Highway prevented the West Point team from appearing at the municipal auditorium Wednesday night in a regular Orange-Sullivan League game against Len Sickler's Colonials. The game will be rescheduled later this month.

Although Sickler was disappointed in having last night's tilt called off, he admitted that traveling conditions were far from safe. He received a call from the Point about 3 p. m. Wednesday informing him that all buses had been grounded due to the icy roads on the Storm King Highway.

"We'll have the Pointers back later this month," Len said this morning. The Point post quintet was to have appeared in Kingston with Dale Hill, one of the Academy's all-time basketball stars, and Doug Kenna, Army football great, in the lineup.

Two Games Loom

Sickler's will take to the road this week-end for two important engagements. Saturday night the local basketballers will play the strong Woodridge Aloms at the latter's court. Then on Sunday the locals will travel to Middletown to play Beacon at the Middle court. Sunday's game will be the preliminary to the Middletown Royals vs. Ralph Branca's All Stars from Mt. Vernon.

It also was announced, this morning that efforts are being made to secure Gus Koch and Buddy Smith for the pair of week-end games. The two Ithaca College scholars appeared with the local cagers during the holiday recess. Ed Weaver will not be available for further duty until March. He returned to school today.

Kingston's next home game is scheduled for Wednesday, January 26, with Liberty appearing here.

Just an Old Spanish Custom

Anna, a Cuban, makes a shot from a falling position. Guillermo, also a Cuban, is the world champion. Edozo couldn't get to the ball, or pelota, so fell flat on his back to get out of his hurdling partner's way. They are Basques. The basket-like racket is a cesta. They're practicing for another winter season of the fast and spectacular Spanish game in Miami.

High Falls Trips Alligerville Five

Trailing until the last three minutes of play, the High Falls Juniors pulled a 52 to 42 victory out of the fire Saturday night over Alligerville at the High Falls firehouse.

Leading the offensive attack for the winners was Ed Campbell, forward, who bucketed 27 points. Campbell tossed in 13 fields and one foul for his high mark. Campbell's tremendous scoring ability decided the issue in the closing minutes.

Alligerville held a 28 to 18 edge at halftime and continued to hold the upperhand during the third period and most of the final quarter. Then Campbell and company went to work and High Falls squeaked through.

V. Neff, A. Lapp and D. E. DeWitt were the big guns for the losers. Neff threw in 15 points. Lapp shoved in 12 while DeWitt accounted for 11.

The feature tilt with the High Falls Juniors scheduled to play was postponed.

Bowling

Two Smash 628.

Eddie Schupp and George Uhl supplied the fireworks in the Catholic Athletic Association Wednesday night at Ferraro's Bowlodrome with identical triples of 628. Schupp clicked for a trio of 200 games on scores of 224-200-204 to lead St. Peter's No. 1 to a pair of wins over Immaculate Conception.

Uhl reeled off games of 215 and 220 in his first two tries and wound up with 193 for his 628 three-timer, the sandwiches man.

Other big scores were posted by Pete Tatarzewski who hit 201-554; Hastings 220-546; Joe Pautz 192-546; Charlie Herlica 201-542; J. Sweeney 200-534; Jack Schatzel 180-533; John Zech 186-522; Joe Mannello 194-521; Gilday 190-508; E. Murphy 191-507; and Fred Ferraro 183-502.

Another Amato took over the bowling spotlight this week, when Amato, first name Tony, banged out a 602 series to lead the City Minor leagues.

The Hutton Brick leadoff shot games of 194-201-188 to beat out J. Misasi, his teammate anchor, for the honors. Misasi posted 194-201-188 on the bottom.

In Game, the sandwiches man, accounted for 203-159-163-525. Jim Pruden posted 185-519; Ken Radel 191-508; Bud Evans 206-537; Ralph Mayone 207-508; Herbie Sleight 198-508; Otto Schaller, Jr., 214-574; Ralph Dumeno, second best in the loop, 217-184-149-596; W. DuBois 181-519 and J. Provenzano 184-503.

The Friendship League flashed a brand new star, Winnie Overfield of Schwenk's Bakery who showed her heels to the sharpies with a gaudy 541 total.

Winnie finished with 215, after opening counts of 157 and 169. Runerup was Marge Jansen, a semi-retired old timer who managed to struggle through 159-172-188. Evelyn Dolson bracketed a pair of 171s with 169 for 511.

Also of note were Rola Fredrick's 167-488; Bea Barley 170-480.

Don Weeks, the pitcher of softball fame, turned in a good portion of strikes last night to lead the American Federation Bowling League with a 559 triple on steady scores of 175-183-201.

Following Weeks, just 10 pins off the pace, was Herbie Sleight who pounded 190-549.

Others in the 500 bracket included Bill Murray with 198-536; Clarence Rowland, Jr., 193-531; Doug Kennedy 203-530; Arthur Carr 199-525; Hal DeCruz 195-521; and Hyde 206-501.

Chet Weeks and Frank Roe missed the charmed circle by one pin, both winding up with 499 triples.

Goalie Is Caged

A Minnesota charge sends Michigan Tech's goalie flying back into the cage. There he became embedded so tightly that it was necessary to lift the contraption to extricate him. He got out to help the Engineers win.

In The Pocket

with CHARLIE FIANO

• Bagatelles:

Hope springs eternal in the hearts of professional basketball promoters who still think Kingston is a paradise for the sport. . . . A series of frantic telephone calls from Saratoga Springs a few nights ago convinced us of the fact. . . . Then, a day later, we learned that the Harlem Yankees had been admitted into the New York State League. Professional basketball is worth a try next season, but only with solid financial backing. . . . Fly-by-night carpetbaggers will never succeed in this town. . . . About every time the weather man mentions a mean, low temperature nowadays, we heartily agree with him. . . . Don't you?

The "Five Old Men"—four bowlers and a sports writer—are willing to accommodate any quillet that has designs on the mythical city bowling championship. The lineup—Hanley, the sports writer, Kelder, Rice and Ferraro.

• Flotsam and Jetsam:

It is a strange phenomenon that a lot of college stars are cold to professional football. We mean the ones who were not caught in the draft. After seeing his Carnegie Tech football team win only once in three years, Coach Wild Bill Donohue resigned. A record like that and anybody gets wild. . . . Lou Zofel's son, Joseph, is an ace swimmer at Union College. . . . Tofel is the Poughkeepsie boxing figure who occasionally serves as judge for local amateur bouts. . . . Gus Cutting of Kingston is a member of the junior varsity rowing crew at Florida Southern College at Lakeland, Fla. . . . Stan Musina's longest batting slump of 1948 came in July when the St. Louis Cardinal ace, who led the majors in hitting, went to bat 13 times without a hit. . . . Only four times during the 1948 season did Musial go two games or more without a safety.

"SKATING TIP"—via Irving Jaffee, former Olympic champion: "Being afraid of falling keeps skaters tense and stiff, a condition which often not only leads to a tumble but sometimes a bad injury. Skaters should be relaxed and have no fear. If they are confident and at ease, the odds are that they won't fall, and, if they do, they probably won't hurt themselves."

• Jake Chichelsky's Corner:

Kingston will be represented by five women's teams in the IBM Polo Sweepstakes in Poughkeepsie this week-end: Gardemait Tractor, Safford & Seidler, Singer's, Weston's, Davidson's Grocery and Smith Avenue Storage. . . . Lou Ferraro will have to stay on the ball from now on. His son, Jimmy, is the M.J.M. bowling champ. Ken Radel and Pete Tatarzewski have recent conversions of 6-7-10 split to their credit. Gil Sampson reveals that while rolling out of town several years ago, he had nine strikes in a game and still finished with an anemic 137. . . . Does anyone like a home baked cake? We understand petite Gert Whalen of the Central Mixed League must bake for her husband, Gene, every time he beats her in league play. . . . Jake Francis volunteers the info that Gertie plans, to turn "The Brush" Rappaport, claims he will be back in shape in a short time. In case any of you folks don't remember, Willie was considered a major leaguer until his arm went dead.

• A New French Boxer Arrives:

The latest of the French boxing importations, Robert Villemain, makes his American debut against Steve Belloise Friday night in the Garden. If he is as good as Marcel Cerdan and Georges Carpentier, he'll do. Otherwise it will be the old story of delousing the joint after a foreign "star" has been dragged to his corner.

Villemain's American debut recalls a number of foreign boxers who grubbled plenty of gatebucks but rare victories in American rings. Carpentier was the most prominent. Jack Dempsey belted him out in three bouts but the Orchid of France gave the customers at least one thrill by tagging the Mauler with a terrific right hand in the second round.

• Apostoli Stopped Marcel Thil:

Another French champion, Marcel Thil, was stopped by Fred Apostoli. Eugene Criqui, also of France, made the grade by knocking out Johnny Kilbane, but two months later was licked by our Johnny Dundee. Four Englishmen, Tommy Farr, Jack McAvooy, Pedlar Palmer and Bruce Woodcock couldn't cope with American gladiators. Farr, licked by Joe Louis; McAvooy lost to John Henry Lewis; Tami Marriello flattened Woodcock; Tom Heenan, the "Red Rock From Down Under" was stopped by Gene Tunney. An Olle Taudberg blew the "Duke" to Joey Maxim in his first American appearance.

On the other hand there were a number of foreigners who made good in these parts: Ted Kid Lewis, Freddie Welsh, Andre Routis, Jimmy Wilde, Jack Kid Berg, Ted Moore, Danny Frush, Dene DeVos, Pedro Montanez, Antonio Christoforidis, Primo Carnera and the most recent—Marcel Cerdan.

College Coaches Aim Rule Changes To Curb 'Bench Quarterbacking'

San Francisco, Jan. 6 (AP)—

Football rule changes aimed at liberalizing free-substitution, while curbing "bench quarterbacking," were proposed to the National Collegiate Athletic Association today.

The advisory rules committee of the American Football Coaches' Association recommended that free substitutions be permitted between plays when possession of the ball changes from one team to the other, as well as when time is called out. A coach at present may send in players in batches (the so-called "platoon" system) only when time has been called.

Also recommended by the advisory committee was elimination of the present rule permitting substitution of a player every play while the clock is running.

"Such a change would help eliminate quarterbacking from the bench," commented Coach Tuss McLaughry of Dartmouth, a member of the committee.

McLaughry declared the proposed changes would permit "wider laxity in the free substitution rule, while curbing such evils as a coach sending in a string of quarterbacks or instructions carriers after every play."

The change would permit substitution of a player only when time has been called.

Other Changes Advocated
Other rules changes advocated by the advisory committee included:

Reinstatement of the pre-1942 rule permitting a "reverse center" who faces his own backfield.

To make ineligible to receive a forward pass a back stationed close enough to the center to receive a hand-to-hand exchange of the ball.

Declare a forward pass grounded behind the goal line of the offensive team to be a down instead of a safety, thus encouraging more goal line passing.

Give the receiving team the option of running the ball out of the end zone on a kick from scrimmage, the same as on a free kick or kickoff.

The present rule provides that any punt that goes over the goal line is an automatic touchback and the ball is placed in action on the 20-yard line.

The coaches rejected a move to revive the old rule permitting a downed player to get to his feet and run with the ball.

The coaches also discussed safety of playing equipment. Chairman Lou Little, of Columbia University, said the great majority of

Mathias, Olympic Star, to Receive Sullivan Trophy

New York, Jan. 6 (AP)—Bob Mathias' thrilling victory over the world's greatest all-around athletes in the decathlon event of the Olympic games last summer has won for the Tulare, Calif., youth the 1948 James E. Sullivan trophy as the nation's outstanding amateur athlete.

Of 525 sports leaders who participated in the annual poll conducted by the Amateur Athletic Association, 201 voted for the 17-year-old marvel who outran, out-jumped and outthrew them all in the trying 10-event classic at London.

Kingston Library Annual Meeting

The annual meeting of the Kingston Library Association will be held in the library on Wednesday, January 12 at 7:30 p. m. for the election of three trustees to replace those whose terms have expired. The term is three years. The customary reports will be made by committees and new trustees appointed with new trustees, elected that night, assigned. The Board of Trustees will report to the members the progress made by the library during the year 1948.

Following the annual meeting, the Board of Trustees will meet and elect officers for the new year.

This is the 50th year of the existence of the library which began in a small room in the city hall building.

In an endeavor to increase membership, which usually remains stable at about 600 members, the Board of Trustees has mailed the following letter:

Dear Friend:

The trustees of the Kingston City Library are trying to increase the membership of the Library Association. If you are already a member will you please send your dues ($1.00 or more) for the coming year and will you try to secure one new member for the association? If you are not, the Board of Trustees would appreciate it if you will become one.

The library is working on a small budget and this year, in addition to the usual expenses there have been some necessary repairs made: new sidewalks on Broadway, new lights and a new ceiling in one of the rooms. It is also proposed to put linoleum in the reading rooms and new shelves for books in the basement. The funds for books, in consequence, are very low and it is hoped the dues from members will help out this primary necessity for a library. Please send or take your dues to the library and help support this fine old city institution.

The annual meeting, which it is hoped you will attend, will be held in the library at 7:30 p. m., January 12, 1949.

Sincerely yours,

THE BOARD OF TRUSTEES.

Young Resigns His Post as Senator

Albany, N. Y., Jan. 6 (AP)—The Republican majority in the state Senate was down to five votes today following the resignation of Sen. Fred A. Young of Lowville.

Young, appointed December 8 to the State Court of Claims, formally resigned yesterday as the Senate organized for the 172d session of the legislature.

His departure left 30 Republicans and 25 Democrats in the smaller house in which 29 votes are needed to pass legislation.

Young took the oath of office for his court post shortly after resigning. He is scheduled to preside at his first term in Rochester, January 17.

His successor from the 40th Senatorial District will be chosen at a special election within 30 days. The district, normally Republican, comprises Lewis, Herkimer, Hamilton and Fulton counties.

Germans Are Driven Out

Duesseldorf, Germany, Jan. 6 (AP)—Workers in the Bochumer Verein Steel Works drove out a group of Germans sent by the British today to begin dismantling the plant. "Traitors," they cried.

"Shame." The plant is in Bochum, 30 miles northeast of Duesseldorf. A high British official said troops would be moved in Monday and if the workers try again to intervene "we are prepared to take counter measures."

McKENNEY ON BRIDGE

Guard Against Bad Trump Distribution

By WILLIAM E. MCKENNEY

America's Card Authority

Written for NEA Service

I am combining my lesson hand today with belated best wishes for a happy and prosperous 1949 to Mrs. Phyllis Schellenberg and Henry J. Fishbein, who operate the Mayfair Bridge Club in New York City. They are always ready and willing to help raise funds for our children's cancer ward at Memorial Hospital. Their club members furnished the money to give the children their Christmas party at the hospital.

In giving me today's lesson hand, Fishbein said that regardless of how often I publish the trump distribution that is in it, even good players slip up on the proper way to play it. He wanted to point out today the importance of where to win trick number one. In many cases it does not make any difference, but quite often, when you win the first trick is the key to winning or losing the hand.

The opponents win the first three heart tricks. When East wins the third trick with the ace of hearts, he leads back a club. Where should declarer win the first club trick? If he wins it in dummy with the queen, he will have to cash the ace of spades and then lead a small spade; but he will not be able to get into dummy to pick up East's fourth spade and he will lose the contract. Therefore he must win the first trick in his own hand and conserve the entry into dummy.

When declarer wins the first club trick in his own hand with the jack, he leads a spade to the ace and West shows out. Now he leads a small spade and if East plays the ten-spot, declarer wins with the queen, and he has the club entry into dummy to take the other spade finesse.

"Bear in mind," said Fishbein, "that if West holds the four spades to the jack-ten, you can pick up all of the outstanding tricks. But when you hold this type of trump distribution, always provide for a four-nothing break."

Living Fossil Found In Hindu Holy City

New Delhi, India (AP)—A "Living Fossil" has been discovered in the wells of the Hindu holy city of Benares in the form of a tiny, transparent, centipede-like shrimp.

Dr. B. N. Chandra, formerly officiating director of the zoological survey of India, said that its ancestors seemed to have flourished during Mesozoic period of the earth's history over 100,000,000 years ago.

Other representatives of this ancient group (Plesiosauroidea) had been confined to Australia, Tasmania, New Zealand and the Cape Province of South Africa.

He said its discovery in India lent support to the view about the existence of the Gondwana land, when Australia, Tasmania, New Zealand, Southern Asia, South Africa and South America formed one big southern land mass.

Lions Give Check to Help Youth

At the opening of the renovated downtown recreation center, 97 Broadway, Wednesday night, Mayor Oscar V. Newkirk, center, accepts Lions Club check towards payment of furniture from Alvin Feuerstein, treasurer of the organization. Attorney Francis Martocci, president of the Lions, is at right. That the furniture is a welcome and useful gift is demonstrated by a group of teen-agers in the reading room of the popular center where downtown youngsters may gather for supervised play and to take advantage of a program of arts and crafts. 200 in Attendance At Center Opening

A crowd estimated at 200 attended the open house at the recreation center, 97 Broadway, last night for a program that included dancing, refreshments and brief talks by several city and county officials.

Among the officials were Mayor Oscar V. Newkirk, County Judge John M. Cashin, District Attorney Louis G. Bruhn; Robert Cousins, chairman of the Civic Recreation Commission; Frank Martocci, president of the Lions Club; Dr. Saul Goldfarb, Andrew Murphy, 3rd, who is in charge of the center, and several members of the local Lions Club.

Several of the officials spoke briefly during the radio broadcast by WKNX from 8:30 to 9 p. m. Dancing was scheduled from 8:45 to 10:15 p. m., with music by Floyd Dietz and his orchestra. Light refreshments were served to the children and parents who accompanied them.

Farrell's House

Robbed at Woodstock

Frank B. Farrell, owner of the Brass Rail restaurant in Woodstock, reported today that between $150 and $200 was taken from his home on the Woodstock-West Hurley road sometime New Year's Eve.

Farrell said he and his wife returned from work at the Brass Rail about 4 a. m. January 1 to find the interior of the house ransacked "from top to bottom." The lights were on and a rear door had been forced, he said.

Apparently nothing had been taken except the money, which had been in a desk, he said. The money was the cash register receipts of the previous night and the exact amount is not known.

The burglary occurred sometime between 10 p. m. December 31 and 4 a. m. January 1, Farrell said, as those were the hours during which the house was not occupied.

Trooper John Metzger of the state police B.C.I. is investigating.

Inslerman Appears

said he is "trying to make a living raising chickens."

Inslerman, who appeared before the jury for the third day in a row, parried questions with "no comment." His connections with the hearings have not been disclosed.

An official of the Republic Aviation Co. said Inslerman was employed by his firm from 1942 to 1946. The official said Inslerman worked on plans for the P-47 and for conversion of C-54 cargo planes to transports, but was employed on "no secret or confidential projects."

Previously, from 1938 to 1942, Inslerman worked for the Glenn L. Martin Co. in Baltimore. An official there said last night he left with a "good work record." He worked for a time as a draftsman on the B-26 Marauder for the Baltimore firm.

In 1939, as a night student, Inslerman received a bachelor of science degree from Johns Hopkins University, Baltimore.

Now 38 and married, Inslerman is a $5,000-a-year engineer at the G.E. plant in Schenectady, N. Y.

Sugden Can Live His Life as Farmer

Sharon, Pa., Jan. 6 (AP)—Herbie Sugden, Jr., a gurgling 13-year-old who hates city life so much he ran away from home, has his father's permission to go back to the farm.

Herbie, son of a St. Louis cereal company executive, wandered into the Sharon Police Station Tuesday night. He asked for a place to sleep.

The police checked their tele-phones. A general alarm had been sent out for the boy after he disappeared Sunday from his home in Webster Groves, Mo., a fashionable St. Louis suburb.

"I don't like city life, Herbie said. 'I don't know why. I just don't like it. I'm going to be a farmer.'"

The Sugden family lived on a farm at Morrisstown, N. Y., until last November.

Herbie said he was on the way to his grandparents in Himrod, N. Y. He started out with $19 but reached Sharon with only $1.25.

The boy talked with his father, Herbert Sugden, Jr., by long distance telephone late yesterday. Herbie cheerfully reported:

"Dad said I don't have to go back to St. Louis. I can stay with grandfather on the farm and go to school there."

His grandfather was motoring here to claim Herbie.

"He's helping us out," reported Desk Sgt. Charles Engan. "I think now he wants to be a policeman."
